FOREWORD

We, the class of '50, who have spent our important and valuable high school years in the Washington Township High School, have endeavored, in the form of a diary, to record the treasured memories and incidents of this time. This Wahtonian has within its covers some of our most cherished friends, who have been our classmates throughout our school years, our teachers, who have always tried to help us and prepare us for the future, and our past experiences which will always be very prominent in our lives. Now that the future is before all of us, it is the hope of the graduating class that the underclassmen will construct in the years to come a similar memorandum.

DEDICATION

We, the Students of the Senior Class of 1950, dedicate this yearbook to Miss Helen E. Miller, our Senior class adviser this year, who did so much to make our yearbook a success. We hope that she will do as good a job in the years to come as she did with us this year.

Principal's Message

To you, the graduating class of 1950, who so thoughtfully have dedicated this issue of the Yearbook, the Wahtonian, to Miss Helen E. Miller:—

Four years have slipped away. You, the class of 1950, are leaving your high school, never again to return as a class for a designed course of study.

It is my sincere hope, that you have been prepared through these years to meet, in part, some of the challenges of life, that will face you, remembering yesterday's challenges only as an experience, in order to make the tomorrow better.

May I caution each of you as an individual, to remember what your school as a whole has done for you; what experiences you have had; what challenges you have met during these four short years; being mindful that you have had numerous opportunities to grasp the fundamental truths of life, in order that you would be well equipped to meet the challenges of life which lay ahead. Educational opportunities were always available. You are the sole judge as to how receptive you have been to these opportunities.

Now, you, as an individual in the class are leaving these halls. As you go forth to your chosen work, I urge you never to lose sight of the many fine things that the school has tried to do for you, always looking back with pride and joy on the privilege of being an Alumnus of Washington Township High School. May God shed his richest blessings on your every endeavor.

Signed,

H. Walter Lohman.

Class History

The purpose of this history is not to relate every step in the progress of our class from our humble beginnings as freshmen, four years ago, to our arrival at the dizzy height we now occupy. On the contrary, in accordance with the modern tendencies in historical writing, the author aims to emphasize only those factors in our class development which appeal to us as most vital from the standpoint of today, and to explain prevailing conditions and institutions by showing how they came about.

We have not tabulated a series of historical occurrences under successive classroom administrators, but have carefully selected the important phases in the developmnt of the class and treated them in as coherent a manner as possible, considering the material with which we have to deal.

The history is divided into three parts: Discovery, Exploration, and Settlement.

DISCOVERY

The discovery of the class of 1950 was an accident. Four years ago, early one morning on the third day of September 1946, the faculty of the W. T. H. S. were strolling aimlessly through the corridors, chatting about the just ended vacation and wondering whether there would be any startling changes in their work during the coming year.

Suddenly they caught a glimpse of something new and strange. Just inside the front door, huddled together in mute embarrassment and anxiety were the members of what became the class of 1950. To the casual eye, we seemed merely a group of ordinary boys and girls, well dressed, reasonably good looking, and badly frightened. Gently attempting to dispel the fears of the strangers, the faculty bade us enter and spent the next few weeks attempting to gain our confidence and friendship. They succeeded, after great difficulty in doing this. The discoverers of the class of 1950 will be celebrated in our history for the gentleness and courtesy they displayed toward these strange beings they so curiously encountered on September 3, 1946.

EXPLORATION

The discovery having been reported to the ruler of the high school, Dr. McCullough, principal, he received the news of this remarkable acquisition to his territory with marked delight and a few misgivings. It is true, there were in this school those who jeered at the new people and considered it folly to regard us as of little value or worthy annexing.

As Freshmen we were taught many new, strange customs and manners and were required to learn difficult lessons. The most unpleasant thing about this year was the contempt in which we were held by those who had been residing in this school for a longer period than we. However, understanding that this was a custom of the school, we ignored it. During the first month of this year we suffered much inconvenience because of our unfamiliarity with the new school and its traffic rules, but, by Thanksgiving we had become familiar with the topography of the school building and were often in the right place at the right time.

We were permitted to form an organization of our own, and elected the following officers all of whom fulfilled their duties well.

President—William Sanders.

Vice President—Herbert Harbaugh.

Secretary—Shirley Warwick.

Treasurer—Shirley Henicle.

Historian—Shirley Gladhill.

Our chief social function was our class party. Aside from this some of our class enjoyed a roller skating party, and a hay ride.

With the coming of the next September, we received a new name. Because of our skill in acquiring the customs of the school we were renamed Sophomores, and the process was called by a native name, "promotion." And now a strange thing happened. Remembering the scorn with which we had been regarded the previous year, we now adopted the same attitude toward the incoming strangers who took our places as Freshmen.

The social functions of this period were delightful, the most important being our class party and a Hallowe'en party.

The class organization was as follows:
President—Herbert Harbaugh.
Vice President—Harold Royer.
Secretary—Joann Baer.
Treasurer—Shirley Henicle.
Historian—Shirley Gladhill.

Leaving our class were: Charles Burgess, Luttie Birely, Patsy Bumbaugh, Katherine Harbaugh, Mary Musselman, June Smith, Peggy Yeager, Joyce Wishard, William Sites, H. Lily Sites, Dolores Toms, Betty Kint.

In the third year, owing to an old educational custom, we became Juniors and our promotion made our sense of importance increase out of all due proportion. Great indeed was our scorn for all freshmen and sophomores. This was a year of hard work, and the dreaded ordeal of examinations was passed with few casualties. The teachers had endeared themselves to the hearts of our class and there was a feeling of genuine friendship throughout the school.

The class organization was as follows:
President—Herbert Harbaugh.
Vice President—Donald Koons.
Secretary—Shirley Warwick.
Treasurer—Shirley Henicle.
Historian—Shirley Gladhill.

Our Junior and Senior social functions during this year were our class party and prom.

Leaving our class were: Charles Heffner, Peggy Calimer, Patsy Crone, Doreen Monn, Doris Verdier, Alan Kipe, Howard Kipe, Lois Robinson, Marvin Warren.

And now we come to the fourth and greatest year in the history of our class. We automatically became Seniors in September. With the gaining of this title everyone began to take themselves more seriously than ever before. The organization of the class was as follows:
President—Richard Knepper.
Vice President—Donald Koons.
Secretary—Shirley Warwick.
Treasurer—Shirley Henicle.
Historian—Shirley Gladhill.

The social events were a class party, the prom, and the Senior banquet.

A class song, a class will, and a class motto were adopted and used on every possible occasion.

At the expiration of the four years, Mr. Lohman, the principal, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the additions to his school and pronounced them as highly eligible for admission as citizens.

By way of appropriate celebration, a strange ceremony, known as commencement, was held. Speeches were made, songs were sung, and scrolls called diplomas, from the Iroquois word "diplomacy," signifying the skill and finesse it took to get one, were given to us, and a good time was enjoyed by all.

SETTLEMENT

This next period, settlement, is not so easy to describe but these seniors that came four years previous to this establishment of learning to be discovered, had remained to explore, and are now ready to be settled. Most have chosen their vocation and each is destined to become famous and honored throughout the land.

The Crystal Gazer

This little crystal sphere holds all of the past and all of the future. It can reveal the hidden and make known the secret. It can tell you whatever your soul desires to know. I have been asked to search in its magic depths until I discover the future that awaits the members of our class, so soon to take their separate ways, and, perhaps, never to be reunited.

The mist is clearing. I see a farm, its fields are green. It is a bright sunny morning. The cows are filing into the barn. I see a farmer and by his side walks his wife. Now she turns; I see her face, it is Shirley Henicle looking very happy in the role of Donald Koon's wife. On the neighboring farm we see Maxine Kesselring who has fulfilled her wish to become a farmer.

The scene changes. It is a large city. We are in the business district. I am looking at a large factory. It has a huge neon sign reading, "Howard Lemaster's Auto Works."

And now the scene grows strange. An orchestra is seated, awaiting the signal to play, but there is not a sound. Upon a blackboard are figures and mysterious letters. Ah, I see a microphone. It is the broadcasting room of a radio station. We hear a voice say, "Quiet, we're on the air." Looking closer we see that it is Clara Hardman, now a top name announcer. She always did like to talk so I suppose she is very well satisfied with her present job.: The orchestra begins to play and the leader introduces the guest soloist. It is Jean Hardman, one of the radio favorites of the decade.

Again the scene shifts. We see the display room of a large gown establishment. A fashion show is in progress. I watch the manikins strut about the platform. One of them is exceptionally graceful and wears her evening gown well. It is Saundra Shockey, the chief model of the establishment. The beautiful gown that she is wearing was created by the world famous designer, Betty Lou Sanders. Her hair, charmingly groomed, was fixed by the noted beautician, Connie Chen.

The mist blots out the scene and when the clouds clear away we see forest after forest. Two figures are coming toward us. It is none other than Robert Carbaugh and Robert Flory who are now foresters of the state of Pennsylvania.

The scene becomes noisy. Buzzing and ringings fill the ear. I see a room around the sides of which are seated many girls. It is a telephone office and the head operator is Julia Ann Allen. I knew her as soon as she said, "Line's busy." She always did spend most of her time telephoning and seems to have concluded she might as well make some money at it. We find at the desk Carrie Calimer, Betty Barnhart, and Esther Simmers as secretaries.

The next thing we see coming through the clouds is the wonder spacerocket designed by the young genius, William Sanders, who once played football for W. T.H.S. At the controls of the plane we find Merle Crum and Ed Mohn who had learned to fly when they joined the Air Force shortly after graduation. Looking through the plane we see Joann Baer tactfully caring for the passengers. Joann has attained many honors as one of the most courageous Air Line hostesses of our time.

I hear tinkling guitars and the surf breaking on a coral strand. I see palm trees and brown skinned people. It is Hawaii, a paradise for the indolent. We see a figure approaching under a white parasol. She seats herself under a palm tree and slowly looks around. It is Grace Burcker who always did want to travel. Further up the beach we see Joe Rock talking to a group of natives. Joe had stopped in Hawaii for a few days on his tour of the Far East.

Again the mists close down. When they rise again we see a huge truck coming down the street. On the side we see in lettering "Leon's Delivery Service." Why it's Leon Swisher, who has gone into the trucking business. He is now more prompt than he was in H.S. Just a minute he seems to be having trouble with his truck, but there is a filling station right ahead. As he pulls into the station two men walk out to greet him. Why it is Paul Sprenkle and Harold Royer who seem to be in partnership. Harold's face smeared with grease shows that he must have been working very hard on a Cadillac hearse that we see in the background. Just then a dignified man in a black suit appears. He seems to be asking Paul if his hearse will be finished for a funeral that afternoon. As he comes closer, his face gets clearer and we see that it is Harvey Zimmerman, the town's leading undertaker.

Again the mist closes down. When it rises it is three o'clock in the morning. A truck comes down the street and pauses at an apartment house. A man delivers a rack of milk bottles and the truck moves on down the street. Looking closer we see that it is none other than Fred Stottlemyer behind the wheel and Karl Harbaugh making the deliveries. They are now proprietors of a large dairy farm and are making the delivery themselves just for fun. I remember in the old days they used to enjoy staying up all night, so that undoubtedly explains their choice of occupation.

More clouds and mists. Gazing through them, I see we are still in the city. It is the interior of a large public building—the library. Seated at two desks are the reference librarians. They are Jane Carbaugh and Mary Funk who still manage to find time to read the latest novels.

And now I see a lovely village. There is a vast crowd in the church. Looking through the crowd we see some of the old gang who are housewives now. There is Shirley Warwick, and beside her are Joann Rock. Virginia Kinley, Joyce Breach, and Dorothy Shindledecker who have all settled down in the same town. The music begins and the congregation's attention is turned to the organist who is Arlene McClain. Then the choir under the direction of George Lohman, begins to sing.

Again we have a large room empty but for two people and a grand piano. We see a small boy with sticky fingers and a look of agony on his face trying to play exercise Number 13, and his teacher gritting her teeth, is trying to keep from spanking him. At last she sweeps the child off the stool and plays the exercise for him. She is Shirley Gladhill, fingers as nimble as ever.

Next we see a parade marching down the street with Genevieve Knepper leading the band. We see that she still has her sense of humor for she has everyone around her laughing. Behind the band there is a combined unit of the different branches of the service. Representing the Army is Richard Knepper, who was our Senior Class president. To his right is Milton Cline, who was the head typist in our class. Beside him we find a Marine who is no other than Clarence Lenharr who always kept up the morale of the class.

More mist and now we are off the coast of Bermuda. We see an ocean liner cutting through the clear blue water. Across the deck sweeps a cool breeze bringing with it the sweet smell of tropical flowers. Everything seems to be in order for the decks are spotlessly clean and the brass rails shine like gold. A figure now appears to be on deck and scans his surroundings with an approving eye. He appears to be giving orders to his men so we assume it is the captain of the vessel. He turns and we see it is none other than James Bloom who has finally succeeded in becoming a Navy officer. Across the deck a familiar figure approaches. We see blonde hair above a smart blue suit. It is Alma Benchoff as chief hostess of the ship.

The next thing we see is a large hospital. Seated at the desk in the front office we find a young lady very efficiently caring for the hospital's business transactions. As she looks up to greet a man we see that it is another of our classmates, Doreen Knott, now a Medical Secretary. At the other end of the hall we see a young nurse very busily taking temperatures and cheering those who are ill. She smiles sweetly and we see it is Charlotte Mentzer who wished to become a nurse. Leaving the scene of the hospital we are now in the business district of the city. We see a building many stories in height. It is an office building, that houses the business affairs of the Everlasting Insurance Co. Looking through the office we see three girls who seem to be in charge. They are Mary Belle Baer, Illeana Barlup, and Elaine Moser, who have come a long way from high school to the positions they now hold.

The scene changes but we are still in the business district of the same city. Our attention is drawn to a crowd that has gathered on a corner watching the installation of a large electric sign. The supervisor of the work seems to know his job well for the sign is going up fast, but that is easy to understand too, for the electrician in charge is Herbert Harbaugh who was always a handy man in our class back in high school. The owner of the store walks out to inquire about the sign. She seems to know Herbert for they talk as though they were old friends. Why of course, it is Phyllis Newcomer who now owns the "Paris Dress Shop."

The clouds are growing heavier and it is getting harder to see. They rise again though and we see tree after tree in straight lines. We are in an immense orchard. Looking around, a sign attracts our attention. It reads, "The Baker and Kuhn Fruit Orchard." Gene Baker and Alva Kuhn certainly have done well and we even get a glimpse of them inspecting the buds on the trees.

The crystal ball grows cloudy and seems to have no more to tell us.

The plot revealed how Brian Barclay, a neighboring widower, succeeded in getting Pamela Gordon, a widow to marry him, even though his daughter, Melvina used every possible scheme to prevent this, even to the extent of making up the story that a man was murdered in the Gordon house, hidden in a snowman, and haunts their house; how Clint Purdy won Abbey Simpkins, Pamela's mother and how Betty Lou succeeded in finding out the name of her dream man whom she saw wearing M. A. colors at a football game, with Hortense, the maid helping out in her own way whenever possible. The riot started when Winston Pickrell, his son, Dilworth and his nephew, Ross and his fiancee, Imogene were invited to the Gordon home by Pamela because of their wealth. Clint and Brian learned that their lady friends were interested in the Pickrells and succeeded in getting into the house as cook and butler and irritated the Pickrells to the extent of their leaving. Ross, who was Betty Lou's dream man, fell in love with her, and the story concluded happily as Clint succeeded in getting Abbey, Brian succeeds in getting Pamela and Albert, Betty Lou's cat, having kittens and getting its name changed to Alberta.

When Jack Gay married Stella Nagg, there was every indication that they would be supremely happy. They even named their new home, "Peacehaven." But alas! Stella had a family, ruled over by her domineering mother, who lives up to her name of Nagg. Of all the mothers-in-law in fiction or reality, Mrs. Noah Nagg is the limit! Her poor, down-trodden, henpecked husband doesn't dare call his soul his own. Together with Stella's younger sister, Ima, Mr. and Mrs. Nagg descend on "Peacehaven" for a visit. Stella's brother, Willie, who aspires to be a writer, has already been visiting there. Noah had bought his wife a piano for an anniversary gift, but as she hates music, Noah suggests to Jack that the piano be moved to "Peacehaven." Jack readily assents but has the piano put in the summer house to have it tuned and repaired before surprising Stella with it. He takes a former horse-doctor, "Doc" Knott, into his confidence. "Doc" is also a piano-tuner and a jack-of-all-trades. By trying to keep the piano a secret, their mysterious actions arouse the suspicions of the very suspicious Mrs. Nagg, who poisons her daughter's mind against Jack. She believes him to be concealing some deep-dyed secret from Stella. In the meanwhile, Miss Lotta Sayles, a literary agent, who is handling Willie's writings, arrives to confer with Willie. When she asks for Mr. Nagg, the old mother-in-law believes that she's seeking her husband; immediately jumping to the conclusion that poor, innocent Noah has been carrying on a flirtation. The arrival of Dolly White, a dramatic instructress, who comes to give Ima dramatic lessons, adds further complications, as Mrs. Nagg always puts the wrong implication on everything. Things get to such a state that Jack blows up the summer house with dynamite, to destroy the piano. This brings in the police!

Finally all was straightened out and the nagging Mrs. Nagg is tamed.

"I'll make you look like Swiss cheese."

"Here is your lover brave and 'wild'!"

"We're the poor little lambs who have gone astray."

"Isn't he cute!"

"Get out or I'll whistle for my dog!"

The Future Farmers of America is a nation-wide organization whose primary aim is the development of agricultural leadership, cooperation, and citizenship.

The Washington Township High School Chapter of the Future Farmers of America has a membership of forty-three boys, all of whom are enrolled in vocational agriculture.

The chapter is quite active through the summer as well as during the school year. This past year's activities included a hog project consisting of fourteen hogs which were sold at a profit and cared for by all members, educational trips to both the Hagerstown and South Mountain Fairs, and an all day trip to the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in Harrisburg. Another activity of the F.F.A. is their selling of hot dogs and popcorn to the students at noon time. The F.F.A. sponsors an annual Father and Son Banquet which is held in February.

As a service to the school the members painted the school shop, under the direction of Mr. Hess. This organization meets the first Monday morning of each month and the third Monday evening.

This club was unified and established in 1947 for the benefit of those pupils studying Latin who desire to follow the thoughts and to dramatize the customs of the Roman people. The students who wish to engage in the activities of the club, although they are non-classical students, may join as "Aliens," but they can never become citizens of the Roman state.

A charter was obtained in 1947, which made the Latin Club a chapter of the Junior Classical League of America.

An honor key is given to students who have maintained on honor grade during their four years of Latin.

Two of the most important and impelling opportunities for the members to live the life of Romans are the Roman Banquet, which is an immolate to the Roman gods, and a Latin assembly program, also directed by Miss Eyler, the sponsor of the club, which stimulates the imagination of the assembly and carries them back to the era of famous heroes.

The meetings of the Latin and French clubs were alternated on Thursday of each week.

The French Club, in the spring, puts on a pageant for our assembly program consisting usually of something we have studied during the year. They also sponsor a Mardi Gras for the whole school in February.

Special Mixed Chorus

The need for this organization arose last year when students from all the high schools of Franklin County joined in a Music Festival. We realized then our school needed a small mixed chorus, which was organized in November 1948 and continued again this year. We lost quite a few members through graduation last spring. Those vacancies were filled by means of tryouts in September, 1949.

Some of the duties of our chorus are: singing for the music festival, for school activities, for clubs in our vicinity and singing over the Chambersburg Broadcasting Station.

During this year we broadcast over station WCHA on Friday, January 27, and participated in the Music Festival in Waynesboro, March 7, 1950. The group also participated in some school activities during the school year.

This year a new club was introduced to our school—the aviation club. Mr. Farrell from the Waynesboro airport was the instructor.

Each member bought 3 books: one on "Facts of Flight," the second "Realm of Flight," and third "Path of Flight." From these books we had very good discussions about aviation.

After the studying of "Facts of Flight" we had a test and those making the highest grades received a ride over Waynesboro in an Ercoupe. The two receiving the rides were Ed. Bloom and Richard Manahan. About every three weeks trips were made to the airport where we examined different planes. The club consisted of about 25 members and we are sure each one received much knowledge about aviation.

Vice President ..... Marie Barnhart
Secretary ..... Lois Kipe
Treasurer ..... Marlene Ross
Adviser ..... Mrs. Kreps

The Gardening club was organized again this year, although somewhat later than the other clubs and due to this fact, a picture was not available.

The members of the club helped with the carnival which was held at the High School. The landscaping of the members' dream house was one of their interests and projects and also to learn the scientific names of shrubs, vines, perennials, annuals, and vegetables.

This club proves to be very interesting and valuable to the ones interested in such projects.
